

Link: <https://developmentnick.wixsite.com/biocredit>

During the Sup-Free competition, we created a website called BioCredit, which will be used as an auxiliary tool to promote our idea of rewarding recycling. More specifically, the purpose of our website is to promote actions, statistics, and information about how we operate.

In particular, entering our website you will find an initial tab that introduces you to BioCredit in combination with a verse that urges you to take action. On the top right as well as scrolling down, customers have the ability with one click to download our application for free.

Next, you see in front of you four boxes that relate to what we do as a team, a few words about our team and how we work, a few words about our application, and finally, how to communicate with our team members through registration in our newsletter.

Continuing your tour of our page you will notice that there are two texts that briefly describe a few words about us and our application. For your best information, you can click on the "Learn more" option to know the benefits of using the application.

Below you can see in detail the offers offered by the use of our application in order to develop a climate of trust between our team and users. Also important is the fact that the user has the ability to directly contact the team either by selecting the green box at the bottom right ("Let's chat"), or by subscribing to our newsletter.

Finally, there are three columns that indicate to the user what can be recycled in the corresponding bin of the corresponding color